

Harassment Investigations

Miller & Chevalier is a boutique law firm founded in 1920 and based in Washington, DC, with approximately 100 lawyers. More than 45 of our lawyers specialize in handling investigations across a wide range of issues, including allegations of sexual harassment and other legal and ethical violations. Nearly half of our investigations experts are women.

Our team includes former federal prosecutors, public defenders, court-appointed compliance monitors, and in-house counsel whose investigative skills and litigation experience help companies quickly and efficiently establish the facts. This longstanding and deep experience makes our firm uniquely situated to handle harassment investigations and abuse allegations stemming from the “#MeToo” movement.

Recognized Excellence: Our investigations practice is recognized as one of the top global investigations practices by Global Investigations Review.¹ In 2016, our firm was named Boutique Firm of the Year by the same publication. Our White Collar and Foreign Corrupt Practices Act (FCPA) investigations practices are highly rated by Chambers & Partners, a premier lawyer ranking service.² These accolades and credentials provide assurance to those who hire us that they have retained an elite investigative firm.

Streamlined Conflict Clearance: Our significant experience and international profile belie the fact that we are a relatively small firm that focuses on six core practice areas. As a result, when many of our larger competitors are conflicted out of cases, we are not. We often clear a new matter in just hours.

Independent and Dependable: Today’s environment increases the need to ensure that sexual harassment investigations are conducted by independent counsel. Miller & Chevalier has a history of serving in sensitive and independent roles, including as independent corporate monitors appointed by courts and federal agencies, including the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC).

Partnership: While independence is critical, it does not come at the expense of partnering with our clients and their in-house legal teams. Here, too, our experience as court-appointed monitors helps us maintain the right balance between independence and a collaborative working relationship.

Global Reach: Our talented and diverse attorneys speak 14 languages and have conducted investigations on the ground in more than 70 countries. We regularly interact with in-house and local counsel in countries around the globe.

¹ <https://globalinvestigationsreview.com/benchmarking/gir-100-2018/1175679/the-gir-30>

² Our practices are ranked in the following categories: White Collar Crime & Government Investigations (Chambers USA – District of Columbia); Corporate Crime & Investigations (Chambers Global, USA; Chambers USA, Nationwide; Chambers Latin America, Latin America-wide); FCPA (Chambers Global, USA; Chambers USA, Nationwide); Corporate Investigations (Chambers Global, Global-wide and Latin America-wide).

A photograph of the Miller & Chevalier building entrance. The name "Miller & Chevalier" is displayed in white, illuminated letters on a dark, horizontal sign above the entrance. The building has a stone facade and the entrance is lit from below.